Teradata Japan

Teradata Japan, a comprehensive IT service provider, relocated to the brand new Ark Hills Front Tower in Tokyo's Akasaka District. Teradata occupies two and half floors with a total floor area of around 2500m². A generous client area with a variety of different meeting space settings precisely communicates the company's CI. Teradata's design is based on global standards, materials, furniture as well as space relations are clearly defined and had to be adapted to the specific local condition. While many IT firms pay little attention to a well-designed office space, Teradata stands out, providing not only a comfortable working environment for their staff but also a well-articulated branding statement towards the outside world.
